Quo Vadis Southeast Europe? EU Accession, Regional Cooperation and the need for a Balkan Development Strategy. 1. Introduction.

domestic companies to compete and find a place in the regional capital market – which perhaps is a further limiting factor for regional (capital market) integration.

However, the inflow of foreign investments and the competition for attracting such investments has also created the conditions for policy cooperation in this area, in the form of tax incentives and the like (or, at least, for attempts to this direction).
