Components of the standard neurologic examination are found in Table 1 and discussed in detail in this review (table 1). The text is adapted, with permission, from Reference 1 [1]. The examination of comatose patients is discussed separately. (See "Stupor and coma in adults", section on 'General examination'.) To continue reading this article, you must log in with your personal, hospital, or group practice subscription. Subscribe.